Editorial Review

Review

"This biography of Hurston is one of the best books I've read in years and I unabashedly highly recommend it."

-Jack Danger, "The Portland Alliance

""Prison Nation

goes beyond the numbers to show the complex, interwoven reasons that have produced the prison-industrial complex. In every section of the book...readers will find solid reporting, gripping writing and political revelation."

-Ken Silverstein, from the Preface

"This riveting collection makes a compelling case that the United States has an INjustice system at work, and that it operates its own gulag within this supposedly free society, largely out of sight of its citizenry. The brutalities, cruelties and inhumanity widely prevalent in the way people are put in prison, kept there, degraded and mistreated, as recounted in this book's accounts of racist bias, medical care, prison labor, parole, rape, and the "restraint chair," among many other topics, read like something out of Kafka and Solzenhitzyn. This important book is a shocker."

-Edward S. Herman, co-author of "Manufacturing Consent

"An extraordinary collection of essays by some of our most astute observers of the American prison system. What they tell us is shocking and sobering, and their analysis forces to think beyond the cruelties of everyday prison life to the social forces behind those cruelties. This volume makes clear the connection between prisons and poverty, the class nature of the justice system. It is both a treasury of information and a profound examination of imprisonment in America."

-Howard Zinn, author of "A People's History of the United States

"Every American with any concern for justice and democracy ought to read thisdevastating book--but not right before bedtime. "Prison Nation is a true horror story, a profound revelation of what the prison system is doing both to millions of poor Americans trapped in its no-exit nightmare and to America itself. But it is also an inspiring book, bringing together some of the most important work by dozens of dedicated scholars and activists."

-H. Bruce Franklin, John Cotton Dana Professor of English and American Studies, Rutgers University
